Columbia Swim Club...

is the oldest and longest running competitive swim club in Columbia, Missouri. CSC swims in competitive swim meets throughout the Midwest and its swimmers are eligible to swim in the Central Section Region VIII championships, Senior Nationals and the United States Olympic Trials. Its alumni have swum in college at the Division I, II, and III level. CSC is a member club of Missouri Valley Swimming, Inc. Missouri Valley Swimming is a Local Swimming Committee (LSC) of USA Swimming, Inc., the designated national governing body of competitive swimming in the United States under the Amateur Sports Act (36 United States Code §371 et seq.) The Missouri Valley LSC covers the western part of Missouri, all of Kansas, and several swim clubs in Oklahoma. MVS contains over 50 full year swim clubs and more than 3,000 full year swimmers, along with over 500 non-athlete coaches and officials. Those numbers more than double when summer-only teams, swimmers, coaches and officials are added. Missouri Valley is one of 59 LSC's within USA Swimming, which has supervisory control over the rules of swimming in the United States as well as the conduct of various national championships. USA Swimming is a member of the Fédération Internationale de Natation Amateur (FINA), which has worldwide jurisdiction over amateur swimming competition and which hosts the Olympic Games.

Big meet a big draw

Missouri Grand Prix sparks increased interest in competitive swimming

By DANNY LAWHON

The Missouri Grand Prix held at the Mizzou Aquatic Center last weekend was the most well-attended event at the MU Student Recreation Complex, officials from the Department of Recreation Services and Facilities said.

The swim meet, which featured 19 Olympic athletes and a world-record run in the 200-meter butterfly by Michael Phelps, drew an estimated 5,000 spectators over four days.

Diane Dahlmann, director of recreation services and facilities at MU, said the meet was important because it helped broaden the student experience and also expanded the range of individuals who might want to attend the university.

"Hosting these record-breaking athletes has given MU students an opportunity that most other people just wouldn't get to have," Dahlmann said. "With every event we hold at the complex, it adds acclaim to the campus as a whole."

The revenue from the event will go toward the daily operation of the recreation complex, which receives 55 percent of its funding from student recreation activity fees and 45 percent of its funding from self-generated revenues, Dahlmann said.

The positive effects of the meet were felt throughout other parts of the Columbia community as well. Dave Sheahen, meet director for the Columbia Swim Club, said he was overjoyed with the event.

"It's been five days now since the meet started, and I think most of us in the swimming community are still pinching ourselves," Sheahen said. "I don't think any of us would have thought that we could get Olympians to come to Columbia not only to compete, but also to break national and world records."

Sheahen said the Missouri Grand Prix was a giant step toward putting Columbia on the map for competitive swimming. Six years ago, the Columbia Swim Club had about 100 members. This spring, Sheahen said, the club has grown to 185 members.

"In a big way, this meet was just a shot in the arm for the whole region," Sheahen said. "At most meets, the bulk of the crowd consists of moms and dads. But this meet brought all kinds of interested people to the pool, and I hope that (the club's) popularity here will keep on growing."

The success of the meet could also establish the Mizzou Aquatic Center as a prominent location for future swimming competitions. Dahlmann said that USA Swimming is already in talks with the Department of Recreation Services and Facilities to bring back the Grand Prix in some form next year. The department has also discussed with the NCAA the possibility of the aquatic center holding the Division II Swimming and Diving Championships, but those talks are only in their initial stages, Dahlmann said.

Sheahen said he expects the pressure to build both on the club and on MU to have more significant meets in upcoming years. He also gave the Olympians credit for making the entire experience a success.

"Though they're world superstars, they still hung out with all the other swimmers and were very down-to-earth people outside the pool," he said. "I think their attitudes this weekend showed everyone outside the sport that swimming can be cool, too."
